

Scientific perspectives on Genesis 1-3

Hugh Ross, John Lennox, Stephen Lloyd

Three scientists present their own distinctive perspective on the proper understanding of Genesis chapters 1-3. Each speaker describes their viewpoint for approximately 30 minutes.

The three speakers are:

Dr Hugh Ross, an astrophysicist and President of 'Reasons to Believe', an organisation that seeks to communicate the scientific evidence that points to the Creator.

Dr Stephen Lloyd, a materials scientist, who describes himself as a 'young fossil' creationist.

Dr John Lennox, a mathematician, whose research interests cover the interface between science, philosophy and theology.

A Question and Answer session followed the main talks.
